THE Kentucky Historical Society PRESENTS

CHARLES W. ANDERSON JR. | 1907-1960

Charles W. Anderson Jr. helped pass legislation that provided a way for African American students to pursue post-graduate and professional degrees outside of Kentucky without incurring the expense of out-of-state tuition. (Graphic2_FreezerBag50_10633_1.tif Wolff, Gretter, Cusick and Hill Studio Negatives, Kentucky Historical Society)

Learn more at ExploreKYHistory, a KHS initiative to dig deeper into the history behind Kentucky historical markers.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR OTHERS –

Charles W. Anderson Jr. knew what it was like to have to leave Kentucky to get an education. In the early 1930s, as a young lawyer back home from Howard University, he proposed to the governor that Kentucky pay out-ofstate tuition for African Americans who could not pursue their degrees in state because of segregation. That proposal fell on deaf ears, but Anderson persisted. Later as a legislator his idea became law. Anderson also helped provide better educational opportunities for all Kentucky students, allow married women to teach in public schools and outlaw public lynching.

Jefferson County